ON TO SCHOOL

With the summer vacations drawing to a close, pupils of our schools and their parents should turn their minds to the important business of continuing youth's education.

The recent flight of Lindbergh is an inspiring example of seeing the task through. Just as Lindy turned his plane East and set out for Paris, so must the student turn his thoughts toward our educational institutions with the determination, "On to School."

We should employ as much determination, zeal and thoroughness in continuing this great adventure as Lindy did in his flight to France. The happy partnership of Lindy and his plane, which he termed "we," finds parallel in our partnership with our schools. We should unite the spirit of youth with the spirit of education, just as Lindy joined the "Spirit of America" with the "Spirit of St. Louis."

Lindbergh did not make his trip primarily for gain but for accomplishment. However, the former proved a valuable by-product. Let us follow his example, and, as he did, continue our flight in education for the good of the nation and the cause of progress, as well as for the returns to youth. Though the impulse is selfish its fruits are substantial for out of such enterprise springs the inspiration that generates creative power. A hundred plans in aviation are maturing because of Lindy's signal achievement. A thousand advantages accrue from the achievements of education.

Pupil, no less than aviator, must follow through to attain success. Lindy did not stop with the acclaim of the world ringing in his ears. He had just begun his start on a constructive career. He had finished but one lap of the race. The same application can be made to commencement and promotion in our schools; they are but steps to a higher service.

Parents are reminded that Lindbergh's backers had no guarantee of any returns. Loyalty and admiration for the spirit of this youth and the cause he championed inspired them to make any necessary sacrifices. This should be the attitude of parents and taxpayers who appreciate that education is the foundation for life.

It is timely, then, right now, when school days are just ahead, to turn our eyes toward our schools, also toward our boys and girls called on for an important decision, and sound the slogan, "On to School."

NOTICE TO THE PATRONS OF GRAYLING SCHOOL

Beginning of school, September 6, 1927, all pupils will be cared for in the main building. The building on the South side will be closed at least temporarily, action on the part of the Board of Education is taken, owing to the depletion in the number of resident pupils and in the interest of economy.

We are assured by the chairman of the City Street committee that all walks will be cleared of snow this coming winter, before school time. We earnestly solicit the cooperation of patrons and taxpayers in this matter.

Secretary.

Board of Education.

MICHELSONS WIN 1ST SHOOT STAGE

FINALS TAKING PLACE TODAY AT HOUGHTON LAKE

The rivalry between the crack shots of the Hanson and Michelson families is very keen these days and much interest is manifest in the trap shoot contest that is being staged between them. The first shoot took place last Sunday afternoon at the Carl Mickelson traps at Lake Margrethe, when the formers won by a margin of 17 targets. The finals are being staged this Thursday afternoon at Houghton Lake.

The scores made at the contest shoot last Sunday afternoon were as follows:

	Total
Nels Michelson	22 22 22 66
A. E. Michelson	19 17 20 56
Frank Michelson	23 20 23 66
C. P. Michelson	24 20 24 68
Louis Michelson	19 18 16 53

Esbern Hanson	22 24 22 68
Marius Hanson	17 16 18 51
Holger Hanson	20 18 25 63
O. W. Hanson	20 18 23 61
Junior Hanson	21 15 13 49

Each squad shot 375 targets during the afternoon, the Michelsons having a total score of 309 and the Hansons 292, giving the formers a majority of 17 hits. That completed the first half of the contest, the finish being pulled off this afternoon at Houghton Lake. The losing side will banquet the winners as a reward for their prowess at the traps.

2 WELL KNOWN LADIES PASS AWAY

MRS. J. J. HIGGINS OF FREDERIC PASSED AWAY

Frederic lost one of its oldest and best known residents Sunday when Mrs. Ellen Higgins, wife of John J. Higgins, passed away. Mrs. Higgins had been in poor health since last November and the last of the week suffered a paralytic stroke, which hastened her death.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning with the funeral mass at St. Leo's church, Frederic, of which this esteemed lady was a devoted member. Rev. J. L. Culligan officiated.

Mrs. Higgins, who was widely known for her kindness and thoughtfulness to others, was born January 23, 1852 at Wheeling, West Virginia. She was united in marriage to John J. Higgins in the year 1875 and the following year the young couple sought Frederic as their home. They have resided in that little village since that time, which is over 50 years.

For several years they have conducted a grocery store very successfully and at present, Harry Higgins, their son, is postmaster there, conducting the postoffice in connection with the store.

Besides the son Harry, one other son, Edward C. of Lansing, survives, together with the husband and two sisters, Mrs. Catherine White of Bay City and Mrs. Mary Rutledge of Brea, Calif.

The following from out of the city were in attendance at the funeral, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Higgins, Lansing; Mrs. Catherine White, Mrs. John Lammiman and Mrs. Ernest White of Bay City; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph White, Mrs. Charles White, Flint; Mr. Albert White, Detroit.

The remaining members of the family have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

MRS. HEMMING PETERSON PASSED AWAY

The death of Mrs. Hemming Peterson that occurred at Mercy hospital Tuesday morning, following an operation performed Monday, was a severe shock to her family and friends. Mrs. Peterson had been in ill health for years and this was the third operation she had submitted to in an effort to restore her health.

Anna Kirstine Nelson was born in Laaland, Denmark, and was 62 years, 5 months and 20 days old at the time of her death. Her girlhood was spent in her native country and in 1889 she came to America and to Grayling, where she remained for a time, going from here to Wisconsin. Shortly after going to Wisconsin she was united in marriage to Hemming Peterson and after nine years of residence there the family came to Grayling, and resided here until the fall of 1916 when they left their farm near Grayling and purchased one in Maple Forest, where they have since resided.

Mrs. Peterson was devoted to her home and family, and most of her time was spent looking after their comfort. She was a member of the Danish-Lutheran church and while in Grayling took an active part in its affairs.

Surviving the deceased are her husband and six children, Mrs. Sophie Eriksen, Duluth; Mrs. Christine Feldhauser, Lovells; Mrs. Esther Peterson and Hans L. Peterson, Grayling, and Martha and Johannes at home. Also a brother, John Nelson of Watertown, S. D., and a sister in Denmark survives.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon with services at the home of her son, Hans L. Peterson at 1:30 and at 2:00 o'clock at the Danish-Lutheran church.

ENTERTAIN FOR WASHINGTON GUESTS

Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Bethards and Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Wetz were hosts at Buckeye Frog Lodge, McIntyre's Landing, to some twenty members of the summer colony on the north side of Lake Margrethe, on Thursday evening, the guests of honor being Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Watson of Washington, D. C.

The lodge was tastefully decorated with multi-colored foliage. Following varied social diversion, the guests danced to the strains of selections received by radio from Chicago and Detroit stations.

A delightful buffet luncheon was served at midnight, closing one of the season's most enjoyable social functions at this popular colony on the northern lake shore.

FREDERIC SCHOOL OPENS SEPT. SIXTH

School work will resume in Frederic September 6th.

The superintendent will be in his office September 5th, to consult with anyone desiring information relative to the year's work.

The teaching force will be the same this year with the exceptions of Gen. C. Hall, principal, who holds a life certificate from Wisconsin and Miss Louise Hawkes, assistant principal, with life certificate and B. A. degree from Hillsdale college.

We expect to offer a very attractive course and will be pleased to receive all students who find it convenient to enter our school.

GENTRY BROS. CIRCUS WITH 39 YEARS SUCCESS

Gentry Bros. Shows this season have reached the pinnacle for which 39 years of conscientious toil and painstaking labor have been spent by the famous four brothers in their efforts to provide clean and wholesome circus entertainment with the best talent and equipment available in the entire world. The big tented city will be pitched in Grayling in Ellerson's field, Monday, Sept. 5th, and the circus fans for themselves may see the sensational success with which their endeavors have met.

The history of this gigantic amusement organization reads like an Arabian Nights tale and is filled with incidents which make it unique and outstanding in the circus annals of the world. From a humble beginning, without capital and with only a limited experience Gentry Brothers have seen their circus grow from a small overland show to a veritable colossus of gigantic entertainment enterprises.

It was in 1887 that the first Gentry Brothers shows appeared and since that time each season has seen it increase perceptibly and this season the famous American amusement institution finds itself at the topmost point of achievement.

Gentry Brothers would have had little opportunity, if any, of achieving the success they have if they had betrayed the confidence of the public. However, from the very start they made "Quality, Honesty and Cleanliness" their motto and have lived up to every meaning of the phrase.

It was only through the wholehearted endeavors to provide the best entertainment obtainable in the best manner possible that they were enabled to rise from an obscure wagon show to the fore-front of the American circus world today.

This season finds Gentry Bros. Shows with a galaxy of stars never equaled in previous seasons. There are three rings, and two elevated stages under the "big top" and more than 500 people are carried with the shows. The number of horses has been enlarged, too, and more than 300 are carried this season. A huge fortune has been invested in the wild animals that are to be seen in the immense menagerie. Among those who will appear in the performance are 60 riders, 30 acrobats, 60 acrobats and 30 clowns. The circus has its own special train of double length all steel cars.

At 11 a. m. a spectacular street parade will be given. Doors to the menagerie open at 1 and 7 p. m. and the big show performance will begin at 2 and 8 p. m.

Gentry Show Receives Shipment of Animals

A carload of animals consisting of three elephants, four hyenas, two black pumas and miscellaneous hay-eating-beasts was received at Menominee Wednesday by the Gentry Bros. Circus. The animals were recently imported to the United States by Ellis S. Joseph, animal dealer of New York, for King Bros. Another shipment received considerably augments the menagerie of the Gentry Show. The elephants arrived from Indo-China in New York Sunday night after 51 days aboard ship.

The following afternoon they were en route to Menominee, arriving Wednesday morning in time to make the parade. Unaccustomed to American ways, the elephants were chained to other pachyderms while in the parade.

The measure of our dividends will depend on the measure of our investments.

The Study group meets on Thursday night at the church. Time of meeting, 7:30 P. M.

A Thought for The Week

Lord Gray, once Governor General of Canada, left for us a death-bed message which has a real ring to it. He said, "I want to say to the people that there is a real way out of all this mess materialism has got us into. It is Christ's way. We've got to stop quarreling, we've got to realize that we are members of the same family. I'm perfectly sure that there is nothing that can help humanity, except love. Love is the way out and the way up. This is my farewell message to the world."

YOUNG MAN ORDAINED INTO MINISTERHOOD

Sunday the Danish-Lutheran church was the scene of a very happy event, when Franz Olof Lund of Omaha, Nebraska was ordained into the ministerhood. Rev. Kjolhede, who is the ordaining minister of the Danish-Evangelical church of America, had charge of the ceremonies and was assisted at the altar by Rev. Dickson of Ludington, who came to be in attendance. The latter also delivered the sermon to the large congregation present. Mr. Lund came to Grayling a couple of weeks ago, having just completed a theological course at Grandview college, Des Moines, Iowa, and he has been honored by being called upon to serve the church at Omaha.

In the afternoon a reception was held at Danebald hall for Rev. Lund, with a large crowd in attendance.

Rev. Lund was scheduled to be the main speaker of the afternoon and spoke from the text of the day. Also Rev. Dickson and Mrs. Kjolhede made some very interesting remarks.

The affair closed with a delicious lunch served by the Danish Ladies Aid society, on tables attractive with cut flowers.

Rev. Kjolhede will leave Friday for Brooklyn, N. Y. to officiate at a like ceremony.

this contest of guessing the correct sizes of both shirts. The Grayling Mercantile Co. will award a "Racine" shirt as prize to the first person giving the correct sizes.

"Racine" shirts are built along scientific lines to give more comfort to the wearer, and less work to the women by eliminating mending jobs. Most shirts are designed to fit the cloth, disregarding the wearer's comfort, but each size of "Racine" shirts is cut over its own individual pattern, guaranteeing a proper fit for the average man. Sleeves are cut extra wide and will not break out. Cuffs have four thicknesses at wearing edge. Bodies are cut full ten inches larger than actual chest measurements. There is no binding or strain anywhere to interfere with action.

Grayling Mercantile Co. further states that they have distributed the "Racine" shirt for years, and every size is backed up with the maker's as well as their own guarantee.

Special for Friday and Saturday Roses $1.00 per doz.

NEXT WINTER'S SPORTS

In the midst of warm weather and the approach of early fall, it may seem too soon to discuss winter sports; too early visualize men and women, boys and girls, wrapped in warm clothing and heavy shoes, wearing toboggan caps with tassels hanging over to one side, arms carrying pairs of skis, skates or dragging a huge toboggan sled; it may seem premature to plan the construction and maintenance of ice toboggan slides and ski jumps. All these things are used only when there is zero weather and snow. We haven't even finished our harvests, flowers still bloom in our gardens and everywhere there is vegetable life and things are still growing, and people are still wearing mid-summer apparel.

There comes times when we must forget our present affairs to look ahead into the future and plan for that period that is before us. It takes time to arrange for a successful winter sports program and to formulate constructive plans for its consummation.

Whose business is it to make these preparations? Who are the ones that benefit from winter sports? Who is responsible for the promotion of the welfare of a community? Opportunity is fighting to get in and it takes but a little constructive effort to open here in Grayling the greatest winter sports region anywhere to be found. Everything needed for winter sports that could be reasonably hoped for lies about us just as nature placed it there. Like the diamond that God created, He expected man to finish it; to add the sparkle and charm. So too, it is that if we are to become the big winter sports region that we should be, then it is for man to lend his hand in the development of that with which this community has been so richly endowed.

In the past it has been a few individuals who have financed winter sports and that was done in a half-hearted manner, and the season closed with debts still owing and still unpaid. Many benefitted from the few who helped, but to share its costs seemed to be the other fellow's burden. This year let's get busy and plan things differently. Let's have more and better slides, ice skating, hockey, ice boating and the other sports that call people away from their stuffy homes to breathe the fresh air that adds to their longevity and health. At this stage of the game it is nobody's business to handle our winter sports. Anyone can start it, and it seems that the proper place for its beginning should be from the Village Council or the Township Board or the Supervisors. Of course these men are busy but inasmuch as they constitute the authority to devise ways and means and to raise funds, they should be the promoters. Or should it be handled by the Board of Trade whose membership is altogether too small and many of those far in arrears in their payment of their just dues? The Board of Trade would be well qualified to handle this matter but first the business men and property owners must back it up with their finances and their physical and moral support. However, winter sports should be planned without much delay. Let's look at this matter as a blessing that should be our pride and joy and one that deserves our honest, faithful, unbiased and unprejudiced support.

Our Frederic correspondence a couple of weeks ago contained a news item that stated that a Michigan Central detective had been in town looking for stolen property which was found. Investigation reveals that what was stated was true except that after finding the property the detective learned that it had not been unlawfully taken, but that it was given the accused party by the boss carpenter of that railroad. We are mentioning no names here as no names were stated in the original paragraph thus eliminating further publicity. Those who know of the affair will readily understand the circumstances.

LABOR DAY IN MICHIGAN

Monday, September 5, is Labor Day. In spite of a world-wide charge that Sacco and Vanzetti were victims of capitalist greed, Labor Day will find millions of prosperous citizens celebrating the event, especially here in this state, where conditions have combined to make this one of the most fortunate states in the Union. In no other country in the world is labor so prosperous, so well paid, or wealth better distributed than it is right here in the United States. In this country our labor is our capital. This editorial was penned by a laboring man; laborers will read it in the finest homes the fruits of labor have ever provided in the world's history; we aim to be one large, happy individualistic family, all independently seeking life's greatest blessings, yet bound together through sympathy and understanding. Labor in the United States has been dignified, it has been given a purpose, and whether you be a farmer, banker, manufacturer, publisher, laborer or merchant, your problems are closely allied with all others in this great national march to better, cleaner and higher things. Beautiful Michigan, transformed to its present day loveliness by the hands of labor—the common tie that binds us all together.

UNWANTED MERCHANDISE

One live citizen who was sent a dozen pair of hose, or neckties, underwear, which were to be returned or paid for, has adopted a new idea. He has opened a storage room for such merchandise, and charges two cents a day for storing each package. He takes his subscribers' packages in, then sends word to the vendor that on the payment of storage charges the goods will be returned. On failure to order back in thirty days, goods are to be sold for charges.—Greenville Daily News.

RECKLESS DRIVING

From now on the reckless driver is going to have a much harder time convincing the authorities that he was not to blame. Under Michigan's new traffic law the old excuse, "I was not driving over thirty-five miles an hour," will no longer go. Cutting in and out of traffic, passing other vehicles on curves or near a hill will be prima facie evidence of reckless driving. And the penalties for reckless driving are going to be far more severe than in the old days. True, out in the wide open stretches on the country lanes, where there is no traffic to speak of, one will be permitted to let his conscience be his guide, but it behooves him to have his car under control at all times. The old law fixed an approximate speed in the minds of motorists regardless of circumstances. The new law advises them to adjust their speed at all times to probable circumstances. It will be far better if one sees that his brakes are always kept in proper condition and that they regulate their course with judgment, rather than just a desire to get somewhere in a hurry.

MICHIGAN'S NEW CRIMINAL CODE

Michigan's new criminal code, which goes into effect the first week in September, is expected to expedite trials of criminals and do away with many of the legal loopholes through which many criminals formerly escaped punishment. Many drastic changes have been made, including the provision which makes it mandatory upon the sentencing judge to impose a life sentence upon criminals previously convicted three times for criminal offenses, although the crime committed does not involve a life sentence. Judges are now vested with the power to comment on the testimony, retrials may only be had within thirty days after conviction and then only at the hands of a member of the supreme court, are among some of the changes that have been made. Jurors made up of 12 members, which will be reduced to 12 in rendering a verdict, but which will prevent the necessity of retrial in case one of the jurors should die or become incapacitated on account of illness. During the last session of the legislature the state seethed with the battle for capital punishment in Michigan as the only means of curbing wholesale murder accruing during the commission of other crime. The majority of the legislators believed that the supposed crime wave could be more effectively stopped by prompt punishment of the criminal, and making him remain in prison during his entire term, instead of turning them loose after a few months. The new code, patterned closely after the celebrated Baume's law of New York, has the endorsement of Governor Green, who sent a special message to the legislature urging its adoption as presented by the special committee appointed to re-write the criminal code of the state. One thing is certain, this state will no longer remain the paradise of the criminal, and before another session of the legislature it is expected to reduce crime to that extent that there will be no further cry for resumption of the old Moth law of an eye for an eye, or a tooth for a tooth.

Our private opinion is that nobody is having as much fun out of President Coolidge's laconic twelve-word statement as President Coolidge himself.

President Coolidge is now a full-fledged honorary Sioux Indian but we doubt whether the war whoop will appeal to him very much.

The women used to talk about how many biscuits they could get out of a quart of flour. Now they talk about how many miles they can get out of a gallon of gas.

Nobody in America seems excited because we didn't make enough ship sacrifices to assure an agreement in the Geneva conference; which indicates that somebody's propaganda machine wasn't functioning properly.

It is reported in current press dispatches that African coal is very cheap. This is doubtless because there isn't much demand for it along the equator.

Mount Vesuvius has been in a state of eruption again and this is one independent activity which Mr. Mussolini doesn't seem to be able to stop.

The sheriff of Cook County says that hanging is less painful than death in the electric chair. But most folks would prefer to die of old age rather than either of the methods mentioned by the Chicago official.

Experts at the Williamstown conference declared that John Bull is not so paternalistic as Uncle Sam. But it is to be noted that John has a real fatherly interest in the British navy.

A number of Indians in Wyoming recently drank a lot of moonshine liquor and still remained on the war-path. What a hardy race!

Last hour trout fishing has been quite the thing since Sunday. Pretty much all those who partake generally in the sport took a last fling at it before the season closed.

Some good catches were reported and some good stories of the big ones that got away. Trout fishing is real sport and we wish there were enough fish in the streams that there would not need to be a closed season, ever.

M. C. OPENS NEW FRUIT AUCTION BUILDING

The Michigan Central has just issued a circular announcing the opening of their new fruit auction building and the construction of additional produce stores, offices, etc., in their greatly enlarged and modernized produce terminal in Detroit.

This company has gone to considerable expense to increase their facilities to meet the demands of the trade. They now have 22 team tracks in this room, a combined capacity of 655 cars, served by wide, well-paved driveways, located on a site of unrivalled convenience for quick and economical trucking to all parts of the city. Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that this is really the only produce terminal in Detroit and the surrounding territory.

It is the center of Detroit's fruit and vegetable traffic, equipped with every up-to-date facility for the handling of produce, insuring the shippers as well as the receivers, the most dependable service, whether for consigning, auction or team truck delivery. There is no other fruit auction in the city of Detroit, nor any fruit terminal of consequence.

STATE FAIR OPENS LABOR DAY

Michigan's State Fair will open Labor Day for its seventy-eighth annual harvest exposition on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 5. There will be day and night shows, all closing Saturday, Sept. 10th. There will be no Sunday show.

The Fair combines an agricultural exhibit with an industrial exposition, prizes in various departments aggregating $107,000. To make ready for the constantly growing institution considerable improvements have been made this summer. Four new horse barns have been built and more than 500 race horses can now be accommodated on the Detroit track. All buildings have been painted, with new walks, sewers, lighting and other repairs made. Two band stands, platforms and dressing rooms are among the other improvements.

Ray Smith's Highlanders Band from St. Petersburg, Florida, a concert organization which has toured the country, as is well known to many Michigan people who winter in Florida, will be on the Fair Grounds all week together with the Al Sweet Band from Chicago.

While the many exhibitions halls and the Midway Shows will be of even greater scope and interest than usual this year the Fair management has shattered all past records in entertainment. No less than 25 free vaudeville acts are on the program in front of the grand stand. Air novelty, acrobats, clowns, thrills and animal acts including two herds of elephants are included.

In the vaudeville turns there will be three horse races a day, purses running as high as $1,500 a race. The Governor's Cup will be run on Sept. 7. The harness fields will get the bell each week day with automobile races on Saturday.

Evenings, in place of the races, a gigantic fireworks spectacle will be given. "The Fall of Troy," a historic pageant with 350 people in it, will include two revue choruses with 48 beautiful girls now being drilled by Mr. Schooley of Schooley & Collins, who has carpenters at work erecting the city walls. They will be 500 feet long and 50 feet high. The big feature show is the masterpiece of Theatrical Duffield Fireworks Co., the largest fireworks producers in the business.

Every night there will be a horse show in the Coliseum. National and state fly and bait casting contests will be staged as well as state horse shoe pitching contests.

By no means the least important feature which has been introduced by Manager Fred A. Chapman is the new admission policy. The gate has been reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents for adults with children under 10 years admitted free. Auto entrance also is cut in half to 25 cents this year.

100,000 PONTIAC SIX CARS PRODUCED SO FAR THIS YEAR

Phenomenal Record of Previous Year Already Shattered

Pontiac, Michigan, August 31—More than 100,000 Pontiac Six cars have been produced and sold so far this year by the Oakland Motor Car Company, approximately more than were sold during the entire year of 1926 when this car was introduced and broke all previous sales records for any new make of car during the first year of production.

In fact the entire production of the previous year, slightly more than 76,000 Pontiac Sixes, had been exceeded at the end of the first half of this year, when a production of 78,138 Pontiac cars had been reached. These figures are in addition to the production of the Greater Oakland Six and the new Oakland All-American Six, recently introduced.

Never before has such an avalanche of orders for Oakland Sixes poured into the factory as followed the introduction of the Oakland All-American Six. Production on this model series destined to establish new records. The longer wheelbase, increased size and larger engine, together with new Fisher bodies and mechanical features, all at lower prices, have given tremendous impetus to Oakland sales, which together with the steady demand for Pontiac Sixes, stimulated by recent year's price reductions and new color combinations, promises to keep the Oakland factories humming until well toward the end of the year.

"This year is the greatest in Oakland's history," explains W. R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales, and what is more important, the future promises even greater production and sales. We have increased our sales organization tremendously. We have effected important economies through our new factories, our increased production and making of more parts, such as fenders, oil pans and other metal stampings under our own roof. The new reduced prices are evidence that we are passing these economies on to the public."

Several years ago Governor Coolidge made a record in Boston for courage, and now Governor Fuller proves that the quality in Massachusetts governors has not run out.

The Indians finally gave the name "Leading Eagle" to President Coolidge, which indicates that they have been carefully reading the political dope in the newspapers.

LOOK OUT FOR SALVATION ARMY IMPOSTORS

Numerous reports come into the divisional headquarters at Detroit from Chamber of Commerce secretaries and business and professional men who are interested in the Salvation Army requesting that efforts be made to stop people coming in to towns collecting money from the public, making the people think they are contributing to the Salvation Army. These people are impostors living on the good name of the Army which has been gained by much hard work and sacrifice.

The Salvation Army makes but one annual appeal each year and that through its advisory board in each county, comprised of from ten to twelve of the leading business and professional men and women in the county. No representative goes out from the state headquarters to solicit money before letters are mailed to advisory board members informing them that the representative is coming. These advisory board members approve the budgets and work out ways and means whereby the appeal for funds may be made. A local treasurer handles the money and mails the checks in to our headquarters.

The Salvation Army is not trying to injure legitimate organizations from soliciting funds—its object is only to stop impostors from soliciting in the name of the Salvation Army, and Chambers of Commerce, city authorities and civic clubs are asked to assist the Salvation Army in getting rid of impostors.

PROVE IT--WITH PHOTOS

(By Erwin Greer, President Greer School of Electrical & Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

One of the most satisfying things in an outdoor man's life is a good camera record of a trip to illustrate his experiences for the unfortunate pal who had to stay at home.

Any standard camera on the market today will take a good picture if light conditions are right and you point the camera from the best angle to get the most out of your subject. Photography has been made so simple for the amateur that all you have to do is push the button and someone else will do the rest--if you do not care to do it yourself.

One of the most popular cameras today is that of the vest-pocket type, and they well merit their popularity. They range in price from less than ten dollars to almost a hundred dollars for some of the high-grade foreign models. One of my valued possessions is a vest pocket kodak, purchased ten years ago for six dollars. It is equipped with a single lens and a simple shutter.

I am a great believer in lots of pictures on a vacation trip. I carry the vest pocket kodak in my shirt pocket and can produce and snap it in a jiffy. You can get every point of interest on a trip in this manner and all of the little incidents of camp life which mean so much in the retrospect.

Nothing beats roll film for a vacation trip. Plates are out of the question on a "go-light" trip. I have had considerable experience with film packs and have found that it is next to impossible to keep them from crushing on a camping trip, and there is much more chance of having them light struck than roll film. Then, too, roll film is easier to develop. It can be developed in one strip, whereas in a pack you have two separate films which must be handled. Whether or not your photos will corroborate your fervent word pictures of the beauties of the country you traveled in, or the morning you surprised that big bull moose at the bend in the stream, depends as much, or more, on you than on the camera, which you take with you.

It's a good thing Lindy isn't older or they would be mentioning him as a presidential possibility now.

THE HIDDEN KEY--AND OTHER FAKES

By W. R. MOREHOUSE

Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association

HAVE you ever gone hunting for the hidden key—a key hidden by real estate dealers in order that you among hundreds of others might be given the exercise of tearing up the surface of some new subdivision looking for it? Talk about wild turkeys tearing up the "terra firma," they haven't anything on man. A new subdivision is put on the market. Public interest in the tract is needed, so a key that will open a box in the tract office is hidden beneath the earth's surface somewhere in the tract. This hidden key will open the box in the office and inside the box the lucky finder of the hidden key will find a valuable prize. It may be anything from a diamond ring to an order for an automobile. A new automobile stands in front of the office and presumably it is the prize.

Picture in your own mind hundreds of eager searchers digging over the surface of a newly born boom subdivision, looking for the hidden key—the key to the big surprise box. About the time the diggers have been recruited to several hundred, the key shows up and the news of the discovery breaks. Soon the diggers gather around to see the mysterious box opened. Imagine the babble of joking remarks, some sarcastic and some expressing disappointment, as the grand prize is found to be a $100 certificate good as part payment on a lot, and not the new automobile. Day after day the hunt goes on, a new crop of diggers taking the places of those who have gone through the experience, with the same prize automobile serving as bait. The soil that was turned over the day before is turned back by the new crop of diggers today, and so it goes day after day. A lot of digging by a lot of people, a lot of soiled footwear, one key and one automobile, but an unlimited supply of $100 certificates. Just another scheme to catch a lot of "suckers."

Nearly every person possesses the gambling instinct to a more or less degree. The truth is, the average American is more or less inclined to take unnecessary risks. In the realm of money making many are ready to take a long-shot chance in order to strike it rich, if possible.

Knowing the inclination of the average American to gamble, irresponsible schemers lie awake nights plotting as to the best way of arousing the gambling instinct of the investor, and when this has been done they proceed to fleece him out of his cash. By using various "baits" these get-rich-quick promoters are usually successful, especially among persons who are inexperienced in making investments and who neglect to investigate before they invest.

You can't get rich by dealing with promoters of the wild-cat type, but you can quickly lose what capital you invest. The signing of your name on the dotted line of some trick contract, or the drawing of your check payable to some sharp real estate or other promoter, or the turning over of your cash, may spell financial ruin for you.

Lime makes the land work better, the fertilizer act better, the manures and organic matter rot better, and the legumes grow better.—Extension Division News, Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Secured Permission to Use It

In reading the September number of the brave little Farm Journal, which I have taken and read for 35 years with great profit, I found an article that I feel sure many of us would like to read. So, I wrote to the editors of the Farm Journal and received the following kindly reply:

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agr'l Agent, Grayling, Michigan.

I have your note of August 20, and shall be very glad to have you use the Red Sorrel article from our September issue. Of course, we should like to have the usual credit.

With best wishes, very truly yours,

Arthur H. Jenkins, Editor.

So here we have the article written by Prof. A. A. Hansen, of Purdue Experiment Station. He is a man amply qualified to write it:

Red Sorrel—Friend or Foe?

By A. A. Hansen, Purdue Experiment Station

After all, is sorrel a pest, as most farmers would have us believe? The more I study the sorrel problem, the more I am convinced that sorrel is Nature's red flag of danger, warning the farmer that something is wrong somewhere with his soil. Hence, red sorrel can be looked upon as a friendly weed rather than as a pesky nuisance to be gotten rid of as soon as possible.

Getting rid of sorrel is, indeed, the right thing to do, but not by burning, digging, smothering and devious other methods so often used. Methods of this character, although they get rid of the sorrel temporarily, do not get at the heart of the problem. The only sane way to attack the sorrel situation is to heed Nature's warning and attempt to learn what is really wrong with the sorrel-infested soil, and then right what is wrong. This is the only way in which the red-headed invader can be permanently driven from the farm.

What does the presence of red sorrel indicate? Nine times out of ten it is a sign of soil acidity, and the weed can be driven out by the use of ground limestone, which will, in turn, be followed by bigger yields of crops on the treated land.

Sorrel Indicates Sour Soil

This is not mere theory—it is a workable method. On a warm June afternoon a group of 50 farmers met on the farm of J. Dillman in Wabash county, Ind., to see the result of lime for getting rid of red sorrel. The soil had previously been tested and found to be sour. Many of those present doubted if lime would turn the trick, until they saw a clover field treated with lime, through the middle of which ran an untreated strip. The treated ground had a good stand of clover, practically clean of sorrel. In marked contrast was the almost solid growth of the red-headed weed on the untreated strip, where little clover could be found. The experience of a large number of farmers will further bear out the truth of this statement.

Lime may be put on sod, on stubble land or after clover or alfalfa cutting. As a matter of fact, lime can be added at any time—even winter liming is practiced in some sections. But all soil upon which sorrel grows may not be sour. What about sorrel in sweet land? What is wrong there? Perhaps it is the need of drainage; if so, drain the land to get rid of the sorrel permanently. If the sorrel exists on sweet, well drained land, then its presence indicates the need of acid phosphate, potash or organic matter; and only tests with these two fertilizers and with manure will tell the story.

Acid phosphate can be applied with a wheat drill, or it may be broadcast on plowed ground, usually at the rate of about 250 pounds per acre. Potash can be applied with a wheat drill, or with a fertilizer attachment on the corn planter, and is ordinarily used at the rate of about 100 pounds per acre drilled, or about 75 pounds per acre in corn rows.

Lime Sweetens Sour Soil

Where lime is used, this will usually put the land in shape to grow clover. If the application of lime is followed by a crop of clover, the clover can be plowed under to supply organic matter to the soil. I have never found a single instance where sorrel has survived this treatment. This is the method that was successfully used by Chester E. Hilt, Magdon, Ind., and L. D. Marsh, Osgood, Ind., as well as scores of other farmers.

If the sorrel occurs in small, scattered patches, a good way to destroy it, and one that is successful at least nine times out of ten, is to scatter ground limestone over the patches and then cover them with a coating of manure.

Good Crops Crowd Sorrel Out

Chemical weed killers, such as iron sulphate and salt, will destroy sorrel temporarily, but they are not a permanent solution of the problem. Red sorrel is not a very tenacious weed, in spite of its creeping roots, and it is usually destroyed for the time being by ordinary cultivation; but unless the soil faults indicated by the presence of the weed are corrected, the sorrel will return from seeds that lie dormant in the soil, waiting for a chance to germinate. In good land, however, red sorrel cannot compete with the crop plants, but the crops cannot thrive enough in poor land to cope successfully with their red-headed rival.

If nothing else is done to sorrel-infested pastures, the weed should at least be mowed during June when the blossoms begin to appear and before seeds have had a chance to form. Mowing at that time will gradually thin out the stand of sorrel. It is good practice to harrow grain stubble occasionally where sorrel is especially troublesome, to keep the plant from getting to seed.

Sheep eat sorrel readily (the plant is called sheep's sorrel in some parts of the country), but the weed is sometimes injurious to grazing animals, particularly when it is eaten in large quantities. Where other feed in addition to sorrel pasture is made available, grazing may be safe an useful.

The Farm Journal contains a wealth of helpful suggestions, well boiled down. Their motto is, "Practical, Not Fancy Farming." It does not seem possible, but they offer it four years for one dollar.

Crop Measures

"Cropmeters" are machines designed to help the Government crop reporting service make prompt and accurate estimates of the acreages planted to different crops in the important agricultural states. The new device is installed in an automobile in the same manner as a speedometer. Each year an automobile so equipped will be driven over a certain highway route. As the operator passes from a field of wheat to one of corn, for example, he releases the wheat button and presses the corn button. At the end of the route he has a mileage record of the route, and a record of all principal crops. Comparison with last year's record over the same route indicates the changes the farmers have made in their plantings. Compilation of records from thousands of miles of driving gives a more accurate estimate of changes than can be secured from estimates founded only on observation.

When are Apples Ready to Pick?

To test the firmness of apples as a guide to the proper picking of the fruit for storage and for shipment, a mechanical tester has been devised which measures the degree of softness in the ripening fruit. It operates on a principle somewhat to the gauge for measuring inflation of automobile tires.

Good Feeding

"Every day that you keep your young animals and do not add some growth and weight, you have lost the feed given that day. Remember, that it takes a certain amount of feed to sustain the animal life, and unless you give food in kind and quantity to do more than sustain the animal life, you have virtually lost what you have fed, unless you have some good reason for only trying to keep the animal alive today in the hope of doing better tomorrow." These words are as true today as when spoken by Stephen Favill in 1882.

Is This Right or Wrong?

Last week we sent out the following card:

Right There with The Remedy When we have fed up crops from the whole farm, most of us find that the manure from those crops will not cover more than a quarter of the land that we should fertilize. The other three-quarters get a bad deal. That part of the farm is cropped without being fed enough. The farm begins to run down. Crops become smaller while taxes grow larger. This discourages many a farm family. This need not happen. Fertility can be kept up if we try as we should. To take the place of the stable manure that we lack, let us plow under a green manure crop. A legume crop is best. If we do not have it to spare this fall, a crop of six pecks of cheap rye and 20 pounds of inoculated winter vetch, mixed, and sowed the last few days of August will be a good substitute to plow under late next May, in time for corn, fodder corn, potatoes or oat hay.

Look up seed and inoculation now. Sowing time is only a few days away. Sow in corn and cultivate in, no matter how big the corn is. Just put a muzzle on the horse, use short whiffletree, and cultivate shallow. On summer fallowed fields, drag in. If you never did this before, do it this time. Very few are actually too busy, and benefits are away ahead of the slight expense. Feed your land.

We feel the deepest sympathy for those who have lost their corn and potatoes by recent frosts. The writer well knows what it means to a farmer. It is a terrible blow. Under such circumstances the best thing to do is to dig the potatoes at once and save even the smallest ones for feed, and the larger ones for the house. The badly frosted corn should be cut and shocked at once. The ground where both corn and potatoes grew should be at once prepared for a crop of vetch and rye, to be sowed at once and plowed under late next May as a soil improvement crop, or should be put into wheat on or before September 10. Luckily, to prepare this corn or potato ground quickly as the circumstances now require, requires only that these fields be disced and dragged, if the farmer has kept the field clean as he should have done. By using the method of discing and dragging, several times as much acreage can be prepared in a day as by plowing, and the soil will then be in far better condition for seed than if plowed.

Farmers who rally resolutely and quickly from this frost disaster and thereby going to be the smallest losers.

SOCIOLOGY TAKES THE WHEEL

Clarence Marsh Case, Professor of Sociology, University of Southern California, questions any comparison concerning old and young motorists. His comments on this recent article of mine are intensely interesting. Darned if I don't think he is right. His letter follows:

Dear Mr. Greer: Any reliable comparison concerning the fitness of older or younger persons to handle cars in traffic should take into consideration the fact that there are three more or less distinct aspects of this matter.

The FIRST has to do with mechanical skill—a matter of shifting gears, manipulating the gas and spark, the brakes and clutch. The facility required for this is just a matter of elementary mechanics.

The SECOND side of motoring is a question of steering which involves the ability to judge distances and speeds, and also includes the ability to sit in a relaxed position and simply guide the car. The trait needed here is perhaps the same used in driving the farm-team, the family carriage, horse, or even the lowly wheelbarrow and it is pre-eminent in cycling.

The THIRD quality on which motoring rests is neither that of the mechanic nor the driver, but is purely social. It means ability to bear in mind the traffic regulations, among other things, but in no merely superficial way. The good motorist must enter into the spirit of all those ordinances and regulations, and be able to apply them in a complex social situation. In the traffic jam the fellow who insists on his legal rights in an exacting, mechanical way is a nuisance and a menace. He must know how to yield to courtesy, kindness or some other higher social virtue.

In short, no one who lacks moral and social discipline is fit to drive a motor car in the traffic of today. Such a person has not reached social maturity. No mere individualist, much less an egoist, is capable of being a capable driver no matter how mechanically skillful he is. While ranking high in mechanics, vision and muscle he may really be an undeveloped baby in the moral and social comprehension and self-control which constitutes an absolute indispensable quality of the real driver. For modern driving rests at bottom on the great social virtue of mutual aid.

If the foregoing argument is true, it follows that all statistical studies concerning older and younger drivers must regard these distinctions.
